CARMEL HIGHLANDS

Dear QuersOct 25 1917

I want you to know about one of the beautiful spots in this world, (probably the most beautiful) mountain, forest and sea commingled in a wonderful combination of scenic grandure, rugged rocks and booming surf with a background of forest clad slopes reaching to the very mountain tops making the picture complete, and crowning a majestic crag like point is Carmel Highlands Inn, 225 feet above the sea. You must see this beautiful spot, the buildings in perfect harmony with the setting, the large lobby with its plate glass windows looking out on a scene inspiring and grand, the great stone fire places and comfort everywhere, the cosy little bungalows for sleeping accommodations scattered amongst the pines, all make a picture never to be forgotton. This most interesting coast is five miles south of Carmel and world travelers declare there is nothing quite so fine along the Mediter~~an~~ian or elsewhere.

with love J. F. Devendorf

For information concerning Carmel Highlands write J. F. Devendorf, Carmel, California.

Carmel Commemoration *and Historical Pageant of the Founding of Carmel Mission

1771*

July the Fourth

One hundred and forty years ago, Father Junipero Serra, the great Franciscan Missionary Priest, founded the Mission of Carmel.

The people of Carmel-by-the-Sea will honor this anniversary on the morning of July Fourth by presenting, in the beautiful woods which surround the ancient church, three of the more important episodes dealing with the beginning of our local history. It is hoped that this commemoration may become an annual and distinctive part of the life of the Monterey peninsula, and that from this simple beginning, a great and serious historical production may result.

The scenes selected are of the departure of the expedition from Mexico in 1769, with Father Serra; the erection of the cross by Portola at Carmel in 1770; and the founding of the Mission and first mass in 1771. The procession of Franciscan Friars through the woods; the glinting of armors of the Spanish Cavaliers among the cypress and pines; the pomp and ceremony of the Court of the Visitador, Don Jose de Galvez; the suffering and anguish of the great adventurer, Gaspar de Portola; and the splendid personality of Junipero Serra himself, will form strikingly beautiful and impressive pictures.

The dialogue---each episode a little drama in itself---has been written to show these men of history as real people with distinctive characters. The imagination of the authors has found play in this word-painting. While history has been followed in the incidents, the portrayal of personalities has been the loving labor of able brains in Carmel's citizenship. The pageant discloses those two great motives that inspired California's exploration: the desire of conquest and gold of the authorities, and the simple hope of the advancement of Christianity by the unselfish Fathers.

Each episode is introduced by a narrative song and chorus. The singers will be two score or more in number, of Carmel, Monterey and Pacific Grove, accompanied by the Monterey orchestra. The pageant will begin at eleven o'clock of the morning of July Fourth. There is no charge for seats, as the hillside before the pageant grounds is the auditorium.

IT IS FREE TO YOU, ONE AND ALL

In the afternoon of the Fourth, also on the night of the Third, the Forest Theatre Society presents "TWELFTH NIGHT" at their open-air theatre in a picturesque glade immediately adjoining the pageant grounds. A luncheon will be served after the pageant by the Ladies of the Episcopal Church. In the evening there will be a public dance at Carmel Hall, the music by the Monterey orchestra.
